

Old building

Bats generally prefer clean, draught-free buildings but require some small gaps for access. Different bat species have different preferences for where they roost in buildings and so some buildings are more likely to have certain bats than others.

What to look out for?

The brown long-eared bat prefers to roost in big roof spaces that tend to be found in larger buildings such as churches, barns or big houses. They often like to fly around within the roof space before emerging outside after dark.
